"Historic Ford Island, as seen through the Battleship Missouri Memorial, is significant to anyone who appreciates the legacy of sacrifice and freedom that Pearl Harbor represents to our Armed Forces and the American people," said Michael A. Carr, President and COO of the Battleship Missouri Memorial. "Living History Day on Ford Island will be a wonderful experience for guests to remember, honor and learn about what makes this such a special place in our nation's history."

It was on January 29, 1944, the height of combat in World War II, when Margaret Truman, daughter of future President Harry Truman, christened the USS Missouri as the great battleship was launched from the Brooklyn Navy Yard and sent to protect America's freedom in the Pacific Theatre.

Today, as the Battleship Missouri Memorial, the "Mighty Mo" is berthed at Pier Foxtrot 5 on Ford Island in Pearl Harbor, standing bow-to-bow to the sunken USS Arizona and creating a stirring bond between America's two battleships signifying the beginning and end of World War II.

Construction of the USS Missouri began on January 6, 1941, 11 months before the December 7, 1941 attack at Pearl Harbor and other military installations in Hawaii and the Pacific by Imperial Japan that thrust America into World War II, and three years before the gigantic battleship was launched. Stretching three football fields long and standing 20 stories tall from keel to mast, the USS Missouri was instrumental to victory in major battles of the Pacific, before serving as the memorable site where General MacArthur, Admiral Nimitz and the Allied Forces accepted Imperial Japan's surrender to end World War II and restore peace on September 2, 1945. The Missouri's famed "Surrender Deck" is now a must-see monument for visitors to the battleship.

The Pacific Aviation Museum Pearl Harbor is also being showcased on Living History Day on Ford Island and will offer guests a series of special events, attractions, and presentation to enjoy at its two hangars.

Ford Island or Moku 'ume 'ume, its Hawaiian name meaning "isle of attraction," is located in the middle of Pearl Harbor and consists of about 500 acres of land. Named for Dr. Seth Porter Ford (1817-1866), a Hawaii physician, Ford Island was purchased by the Army during World War I and transferred to the Navy in the mid-1930s. The tiny island is best known for being at the center of "Battleship Row" during the attack on Pearl Harbor, as it was ringed by battleships and other vessels of the U.S. Pacific Fleet.

Battleship Missouri Memorial

The Battleship Missouri Memorial is open daily from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. General admission, which includes choice of an optional tour, is $25 per adult and $13 per child (4-12). The Battleship Missouri Memorial, located a mere ship's length from the USS Arizona Memorial, completes a historical visitor experience that begins with the "day of infamy" and the sinking of the USS Arizona in Pearl Harbor and ends with Imperial Japan's surrender aboard the USS Missouri in Tokyo Bay.

Following an astounding career that spans five decades and three wars, from World War II to the Korean conflict to the Liberation of Kuwait, the "Mighty Mo" was decommissioned and donated to the USS Missouri Memorial Association, Inc., a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, which operates the battleship as a historic attraction and memorial.

The Association oversees her care and preservation with the support of visitors, memberships, grants and the generosity of donors.
